Maa Kaalratri is a revered goddess in Hindu mythology, known as the destroyer of demons, evil spirits, and negative energies. She is depicted with a dark complexion, open hair, and a garland made of human skulls (narmund).

The Navadurga Form

Kaalratri is the seventh form of the nine Navadurga forms of the goddess Mahadevi. She is first referenced in the Devi Mahatmya, an ancient Hindu scripture. Kaalratri is one of the fearsome forms of the goddess. While some argue that Kali and Kaalratri are separate entities, it is not uncommon to find their names being used interchangeably.

Worship and Significance

Kaalratri is traditionally worshipped during the nine nights of Navaratri celebrations. The seventh day of Navaratri puja is dedicated to her, and she is considered the fiercest form of the goddess, invoking fear with her appearance. It is believed that she is the destroyer of all demon entities, ghosts, evil spirits, and negative energies, causing them to flee upon her arrival.

The Sauthikagama, an ancient tantric text from Orissa referenced in the Silpa Prakasha, describes Goddess Kaalratri as the ruler of the night portion of every calendar day. She is also associated with the crown chakra, known as the Sahasrara chakra, which is said to grant the worshipper supernatural skills and wealth.

The Auspicious Goddess

Kaalratri is also known as Shubankari, meaning “auspicious” or “doing good” in Sanskrit. It is believed that she always provides positive results to her devotees, making them fearless. Other lesser-known names of this goddess include Raudri and Dhumorna.
