Worldline [Euronext: WLN], a global leader in payment services, has partnered with Pluxee, a leading global employee benefits and engagement partner to address the challenge of inactive merchants through its innovative merchant engagement program: Worldline Maitri. Worldline Maitri is a plug-and-play platform designed to engage with non-transacting merchants and create a sustainable program to increase the activation ratio.

In today's dynamic payments ecosystem, merchant engagement remains a key focus area for banks and financial institutions. Inactive or low-transacting merchants pose challenges in terms of missed revenue opportunities and engagement gaps. Without structured engagement programs, banks struggle to maintain active relationships with merchants, leading to poor retention and lower transaction volumes.

To address this, Worldline Maitri offers banks and financial institutions a powerful, data-driven solution designed to enhance merchant engagement. Worldline Maitri empowers banks with advanced technology to activate dormant merchants, increase transaction volumes, and foster long-lasting relationships through tailored engagement strategies. These include customized marketing offers, instant rewards, and omni-channel communication-ultimately driving sustainable activation and retention rates.

This plug-and-play solution is both scalable and secure, leveraging insightful data to segment and target inactive merchants effectively. Through transaction monitoring and last-mile outreach, Worldline Maitri ensures that merchant activation is not just a short-term boost but a sustainable increase.

Since the launch of this engagement platform, Pluxee has achieved a 26% activation rate among its non-transacting merchants, demonstrating the strength of this strategic partnership.

Sheik Mohideen, Executive Vice President, Worldline, said, “We are thrilled with the success of the program helping Pluxee to activate its dormant merchant base. The impressive 26% activation rate is a testament to the power of data-driven engagement and our commitment to providing banks with innovative tools to strengthen merchant relationships. This partnership exemplifies our dedication to enhancing the merchant experience and driving long-term, sustainable growth.”

Krishnan Menon, Merchant Relations Director, Pluxee India, said, “Worldline’s intuitive and scalable engagement platform has played a critical role in helping us re-engage with our merchant network. The seamless support and expert guidance from the Worldline team have been instrumental in achieving this outcome. We look forward to continued collaboration that fuels innovation and enhances merchant satisfaction.”

This success story demonstrates the transformative potential of targeted engagement programs like Worldline Maitri and highlights how strategic partnerships can create tangible, lasting impact across the payments ecosystem.
